Invitation to Express Interest
University Animal Ethics Committee
External Members

Charles Sturt University is currently seeking motivated and capable individuals to assist the University conducting ethics reviews of teaching and research proposals involving animals.

At the University we value being part of a wide range of communities. Our communities include the people with whom we live, work and learn in regional NSW. Our communities also include the people we impact and affect by the research we do. Having firm connections and real relationships with our communities helps us ensure that our research efforts drive regional outcomes with global impact.

As a member of our community we need your help to advise us on how to care for the animals we touch through the teaching and research we do. We have a number of opportunities for people to participate in our animal ethics committee and these are set out in the Position Description for External Members of the Animal Ethics Committee.

We would love to hear from you if are interested in becoming a closer member of our University family by being a part of our ethics committee. Please send us your expression of interest, addressing the selection criteria in the position description. You can send this via email to:

Ms Elizabeth Harangozo Manager, Research Integrity at animaethics@csu.edu.au

Please reach out to Elizabeth if you have any questions or would like more information regarding what this opportunity might mean for you.

Thank you for considering this request. We rely on the generous participation of our ethics committee members to help us achieve our ambitious teaching and research program. Come and join us on this journey of discovery.
